Benefits to Children, Families, and Communities

Michigan's Regional School Health Coordinators' network collaborates on statewide projects and assists in obtaining resources (e.g., grants, donated resources) for effective programming and strategies for emerging health issues. The network of coordinators also collaborates with state governmental agencies and statewide non-profit agencies to promote the health of children, youth, and families in Michigan.

Michigan has been gathering data on youth risk behaviors since 1997. Analysis of trend data shows positive movement with youth choosing healthier lifestyles, but more needs to be done. Maintaining or increasing the $302,500 allocation for the Michigan Model for Health and school health education is an investment that secures significant additional leveraged funding and resources at the local level—funding and resources that are directly linked to healthier outcomes for our youth.
